"A Public Vehicle for a Personal Journey"

Using layers of pattern, tissue, birch bark, and handmade paper, Mary Trent Scott creates unique, narrative collages in "Collage, A New Direction." A self-taught narrative painter, Scott began making collages about five years ago. Love of narrative, color and whimsy continue in the new work producing a very personal vision. "Collage, A New Direction," challenges our perspective on symbolic images.

Independent Art Consultant Teresia Bush is an Assistant Professor of Art History at Howard and a member of the faculty of the Corcoran College of Art + Design. Until recently she was the Senior Educator of the Smithsonian's Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, where she was employed for nearly 26 years. Ms. Bush has curated exhibitions for the Hirshhorn Museum and elsewhere.
